Managing Overtourism with Next-Generation Guides

- Overtourism suffocates historical centers of popular European cities.
- The situation is getting worse every year as more people travel and most of them Google out the same top 10 places to visit. Mayors and DMOs are desperate and even consider restricting access.
- Fortunately, technology can help. Personalization based on big data analysis and AI recommends different top places to visit for every tourist based on their interests. Engaging content enriched by AR experiences makes places outside of the city center appealing for tourists to explore. Guiding tourists smartly can reduce overtourism by 30% while improving satisfaction.

How will the Wellness and Spa industry develop? The spa and wellness culture, as it exists today, has many and different roots. They stretch from the ancient spa and bath traditions of Germany and Central Europe, to the cleansing rituals of the Near East, and into the spiritual lectures in the Asian and Pacific area and beyond. This seemingly inexhaustible source of offers and treatments gives rise to one of the most exciting and innovative global tourism markets: The future lies in products and services providing meaning, depth and unique value. Outside the top resorts and hotel brands, the spa industry remains fragmented and has relatively modest amounts of capital available. The consequences of misreading the market can be terminal to a business. Understanding client expectations and how to generate loyalty is core to inspiring a new generation of spa and wellness clients.

New themes, topics and trends in this dynamically growing market segment are the focus of our ITB Experts Forum Wellness, which is being organized since 2004 in cooperation with ITB Berlin and the quality collaboration of Wellness-Hotels & Resorts (wellnesshotels-resorts.com).

All speakers are available for interviews after their sessions outside of the auditorium.

Stop The Flood Of Plastic

Time to act is now: How governments and tourism industry can stop plastic leakage into the sea

- in Cooperation with WWF -

- Every minute a truckload of plastic waste makes its way into the world’s oceans and causes a lot of damage to the environment.
- But the flood of plastic also comes with the tourists.
- In the summer months, the increasing volumes of plastic push waste management to its limits in our favorite holiday destinations.
- The tourism industry is under pressure to act. Holidaymakers don’t want to lie on littered beaches and swim between plastic bags. Sensitive guests urge their hotels and tour operators to change quickly. What answers do they get?
- But the industry cannot operate independently of its conditions in the country and holiday region.
- A motivated hotel and tour operator quickly reaches its limits when political will and laws are insufficient. If the overall conditions are not favorable, campaigns and initiatives will fail.
- Unlike many other holiday regions, the Government of the Balearic Islands are now taking radical action to combat the plastic waste pollution. The hotel sector will be fundamentally affected. Does Mallorca become the model for other tourism destination worldwide?

The ITB-Empowerment Days are focusing on putting a spotlight on responsible, sustainable tourism matters. This forum was founded to create awareness for sensible issues the tourism industry, finding solutions instead of looking away. They also serve as a best practice as many outstanding leaders in the field are being awarded with prizes during the three 3 days, inspiring others.

The Empowerment Forum 2 is a platform for Equality & Responsibility: The focus will be on diversity issues, on gender equality, on awarding outstanding LGBT+ pioneers, awarding women in travel as well as community-bases tourism initiatives.

A great part of ITB Thursday is focusing on diversity and gender equality; the day begins with a closer look at LGBT+ Tourism: A booming segment with many destinations benefitting from the growth – some of them even suffering from “overtourism”. The panel will discuss the reasons and look for sustainable solutions. Afterwards, the ITB LGBT+ Pioneer Award will for the 3rd time hand out a prize to a personality who has been an outstanding contributor to establish LGBT+ tourism as an equal travel segment.

A slot discussing Gender Equality in Tourism will be the next. A range of high-level women speakers will examine the subject out of a female perspective. A special emphasis will be put on identifying which obstacles prevent women from becoming leaders in travel technology.

Going to the next level, in the following session special female leaders in tourism will be recognized with the 5th ITB-IIPT Celebrating Her Awards. The rest of the day is dedicated to the best practices of community-based tourism: The winners of the renown international ToDo! Awards of the German Studienkreis für Tourismus, will be announced. ITB Tourism for Sustainable Development Day

Date: March 5, 2020
Time: 15:00 - 17:55
Location: CityCube Berlin, Hall A1

The tourism industry has grown immensely over the last decades and is providing significant socio-economic benefits for emerging and developing economies. Tourism is now an important sector in most developing and emerging countries that contributes to economic growth, foreign exchange earnings and much needed job creation. Despite these successes, the industry does have negative impacts that require our active attention. It is important to ensure that the positive effects of tourism for sustainable development are maximized, and that the negative impacts are kept at a minimum for often fragile destinations. Only then, we can guarantee that tourism can be used as a power of good, increase livelihoods for local communities and foster sustainable development for our partner countries.

The ITB Tourism for Sustainable Development Day, will inquire further along these lines to learn more about the contradictions and complexities of tourism. For the 4th time it will be hosted by Germany’s Federal Ministry for Economic Cooperation and Development (BMZ) at ITB CityCube. After the keynote held by the parliamentary secretary of state, Norbert Barthle, a panel will consider how cooperation across various stakeholder groups is a vital prerequisite for sustainable tourism development. Renown experts and practitioners will share their insights on how successful management of tourism partnership initiatives and multi-stakeholder approaches are instrumental in creating tangible impacts for sustainable development through tourism. The second panel will discuss how sustainable tourism can be leveraged for women economic empowerment. Women and girls in our partner countries often lack access to education, suffer from gender discrimination and disadvantages on the labour markets and the workplace. Tourism is a technology and innovation driven sector that offers unique opportunities for women’s entrepreneurship. In our discussion distinguished female champions will share their perspectives on how tourism as a developmental instrument and women empowerment can contribute together to sustainable progress.

Panel 1: Many Actors, One Goal – Strong Partnerships In Tourism

- Tourism and development face daunting global challenges that more than ever requires stakeholders from public, private civil society and academic domains to work on solutions together.
- From human rights to biodiversity over changes in technology and digitalization – strong partnerships can lead to success.
- Managing such a diversity of thinking and acting requires diplomatic skill and administrative craft.
- Representatives from European and German multi-stakeholder initiatives and tourism partnerships will discuss how bringing many often-disparate actors together, can achieve common goals through strong partnerships in tourism.

Susanne Salz, Head of Project, Platform for Multi-Stakeholder Partnerships for Implementing the 2030 Agenda, Deutsche Gesellschaft für Internationale Zusammenarbeit (GIZ)

Moderated by:

Panel 2: Entrepreneurship In Tourism – A Chance Towards Female Empowerment

- The empowerment of women is one of the most effective methods to foster positive change in emerging and developing economies.
- Female entrepreneurs tend to be discouraged by social and cultural constructs, lacking access to start-up financing, knowledge about business management and political conditions.
- Unfortunately, the tourism industry is no exemption.
- Yet, although women account for the biggest share of workers in the tourism industry, there is a clear lack of women in leadership positions in this sector.
- With the female panelists we discuss how tourism can be an industry of change for women entrepreneurs in our partner countries.
- Experience has shown, the more dynamic a sector is, the more opportunities for an inclusive participation arise, especially in times of rapid transformation in technology and digitalization.
- Moreover, we debate questions about gender equality in business, participation and access opportunities to tourism markets and leadership from the perspective of female champions and experts in tourism.

Whales and dolphins in tourism: transitioning to a responsible future

How travel industry leadership and support is vital to phase out captivity of cetaceans for entertainment purposes and increase responsibility of wild whale and dolphin watching operations.

The captive dolphin entertainment industry and whale and dolphin watching are both multi-billion-dollar industries. But what does a responsible future for whales and dolphins in tourism look like? This event will present the issues of exploiting captive whales and dolphins for entertainment purposes and the essential role the travel industry can play in supporting change. Ocean sanctuaries for whales and dolphins currently in captivity are one part of the solution, but only an end to captive breeding, imports and wild-capture with an increased availability of responsible alternatives will ensure this is the last generation of whales and dolphins in captivity.

Highlights will include key findings from World Animal Protection’s recent Behind the Smile report; World Cetacean Alliance presenting the opportunities for responsible whale and dolphin watching including turning whole destinations into Whale Heritage Sites and beacons of best practice; and Whale and Dolphin Conservation introducing the world’s first open water sanctuary for beluga whales and their goal to provide alternative, more natural homes for captive whales and dolphins. A leading travel brand will also present their perspective on corporate leadership and travel industry support for a dolphin-friendly future. Presentations will be followed by a moderated panel discussion on how a vision for a responsible future can be achieved.

MEDICAL WELLNESS AND MEDICAL TOURISM AS A PART OF THE TRAVELTRADE INDUSTRY AND ITS IMPLICATION

- Medical tourism has become a strong and successful industry worldwide over the past 20 years, with both: losers and winners in the future.
- It’s important not only to use the term as a marketing tool, you need a very high quality standard. The guest /health tourist always has the opportunity to choose a different destination, so he should be considered as a regular guest.
- To share the stay in a clinic can be compared with a hotel stay, or the clinic should, in order to survive internationally, can also be run and equipped as a hotel.
- It’s important to have a close cooperation between the clinics, the service facilities and the facilitators, as well as the USP (unique selling point) of the facility.
- The business model for international patient tourism is very important in advance, not every country pays a referral fee.
